INSANITY PLEA BY GIRL SLAYER

Agrees To Mental Tests, Faces Court Here Today

'MASTER RACE' charge hurled at Ambassador Lodge and U. S. Allies by Soviet delegate Vishinsky as he brandishes fist during bitter speech before U.N. Political committee.

150 Others Returned
On 23d Day of Switch

By MILO FARNETT
PANMUNJOM, Thursday, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Communists sent back 10 American officers and 160 enlisted men today from prison camps in the extreme hinterland of Red Korea.

Most of the men were healthy looking and exuberant as they reached the exchange point on the 23d day of operation. The switch: They came from camps 1, 2, and 3 near the Yalu river border of Manchuria.

Fliers Included

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Aug. 26—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, the Soviet representative, made a veiled threat today that Communist China and North Korea would refuse to attend the proposed Far Eastern political conference if the United Nations General Assembly did not accept the list of participants proposed by the Soviet Union.

If the two Communist belligerents refuse to accept the Assembly's recommendations regarding the composition of the conference, Vishinsky said, the Assembly would have to consider the question again. But, he added in effect, "what's wrong with that?"

May Fall Through

Vishinsky, in a half-hour speech in the Assembly's Political and Security Committee, implied that the United States was acting as if it considered itself a representative of "the master race" and accepted it of planning with its mechanical voting machinery, "to try to present Communist China and North Korea with an ultimatum."

Vishinsky declared that such action would not produce "fruitful results." Although he did not say in so many words that the Communist countries would reject the impending Assembly recommendations, he prepared the ground for such action if the Soviet Union, and whoever controls the policy of Communist China, should decide to insist on their own version of the composition of the conference.

Suffolk Law Is Accredited

Graduates Eligible
By Action of Bar

The House of Delegates of the American Bar Association yesterday unanimously voted to accredit Suffolk University Law School as an approved school of the American Bar Association.

Suffolk Law School graduates will now be eligible for admission to the bar in all the states of the Union.

Many Judges Here

The school was founded in 1909 and chartered by the Commonwealth in 1914 and now has more than 100 graduates practicing in Greater Boston.

Three of its graduates—Frank J. Donovan, Eugene A. Hudson, David G. Nagle—are judges of the Superior Court of Massachusetts. Others on the bench in the state include John E. Fenton, chief judge of the land court; John V. Mahoney, Suffolk County judge of probate; Daniel J. Gillette, judge of the Boston Municipal Court. Ten others are district court judges in Massachusetts.

DULLES BIDS UN MODERNIZE ITS CHARTER

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles yesterday proposed modernization of the "pre-atomic age" United Nations Charter but urged that the U. N. Constitution remain unchanged in principle.

The President's treaty-making powers.

Dulles, addressing the Assembly of the American Bar Association at John Hancock Hall, was the featured speaker at the current ABA 75th annual convention moved into its third business day.

Other prominent speakers yesterday included Atty. Gen. Harlow Brown, Jr., Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson and Arthur J. Tasserau, president of the Canadian Bar Association. More than 20 meetings of various ABA affiliates were held in and around Boston during the day.

In a major policy speech, Dulles said the U. N. Charter, drafted before the first atomic bomb fell on Hiroshima, was "obsolete before it actually came into force."

As a participant in the 1945 San Francisco meeting when the United Nations was formed, Dulles said, "I can say with confidence that if the delegates there had known that the mysterious and immeasurable power of the atom would be available as a means of mass destruction, the provisions of the Charter dealing with disarmament... would have been far more realistic and realistic."

In speaking against proposed restriction of the power of the President and his Executive Department to make treaties and otherwise conduct international business, Dulles declared: "We have a system which has survived for over 160 years with but there being a single instance of treaty abuse, such as are attested."

A brilliant 20-year-old Smith College student, object of a 40-hour police search until she was discovered in a semi-conscious state in the cellar of her home at 12:40 p. m. yesterday, last night was reported "recovering" from an overdose of sleeping pills at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Mother Unaware Girl's Suior Wed

Somerville police disclosed last night that Mrs. Alfred J. McDonald, whose daughter is charged with the murder of Mary DiRocco, 14, was unaware until Monday that Mary's brother, Joseph, 25, was married.

The police said that when detectives went to the McDonald home Monday afternoon to ask about Mildred, Mrs. McDonald told them she knew her daughter and DiRocco no longer were keeping company, however.

She expressed surprise when told DiRocco was married, the detective said.

Cannot Account For Killing Child

By ARTHUR STRATTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—Pleading temporary insanity when she shot, slashed and burned the young sister of the man who killed her, Mildred McDonald, bordering on mental and physical collapse, tonight agreed to submit to an immediate, 30-day psychiatric observation.

Her attorney plainly indicated this would be the first move in a legal effort to spare the 25-year-old Somerville stenographer death in the electric chair after she had admitted the slaying of 14-year-old Mary DiRocco last Monday.

Faces Death Penalty, Life Sentence

This came as authorities set in motion machinery to seek a first degree murder indictment against the pretty, brown-haired defendant at a session of the Middlesex County grand jury Sept. 9, and police prepared to return her to Boston tomorrow.

In view of her signed confession to Massachusetts

Crowds of curious gathered last night outside Somerville police headquarters, where they apparently expected Mildred McDonald to be brought from New York, and in front of the funeral home where lay the body of the 14-year-old Mary DiRocco victim.

Police estimated the crowd on Broadway in front of the funeral home totaled 5,000 during the night. They lined up four abreast under police supervision, and nearly all of them filed through the funeral home for a glimpse of the girl. The procession past the coffin continued for four and one-half hours.

200 at Station

The crowd near headquarters in Union square was smaller, possibly at no time exceeding 200 persons. Most of them were young men and women in their teens or early twenties.

Miss McDonald's parents attended their Somerville home callers, but her father, Alfred J. McDonald, a teacher of printing at Northbrook Junior High was boards.

This was the conclusion tonight of State Atty. Lewis E. Spring, Jr. of Windsor County. He quoted Joseph Spelman, state pathologist, as making a tentative finding after an autopsy at White River Junction that Krivak died of "inhalation of heat and fumes from a fire."

The state pathologist said Krivak apparently died the rope around his hips, as the knot was on the left side and his hands were free. There was an odor of gasoline in the building and several empty containers were found.

There was no evidence, Dr. Spelman reported, that Krivak had been injured before he was killed. The pathologist said Krivak apparently intended to destroy the building and his own body, but the fire burned more slowly after the initial flash.

Spring said there was no evidence of any trouble between Krivak and Miss Marion Minor, 32, whom he was to have married last night. Krivak recently bought a house here which he was using up for himself and his bride. His body was parked in front of it last night, neighbors said.

His body was discovered by his brother, John, with whom he lived.

relia Schuber, 65, who makes her home with the Plath family, reported that she heard a moaning sound in the basement while doing some washing.

Police Chief Robert McBay and Patrolman Theodore McGlone, crawling on their hands and knees, reached the side of the girl and began the task of edging the semi-conscious girl to the opening.

McBay recovered a bottle of sleeping pills lying beside her. Only eight of the 50 pills contained in a prescription filled out on Friday were found in the bottle. The girl, McBay said, had been given two of the pills Friday.

The bottle, under lock and key, was discovered missing during a police investigation of the girl's disappearance.

It was not immediately determined whether the student had hidden on the ledge on Monday afternoon after a hot for her mother, which indicated she was going on a long walk.

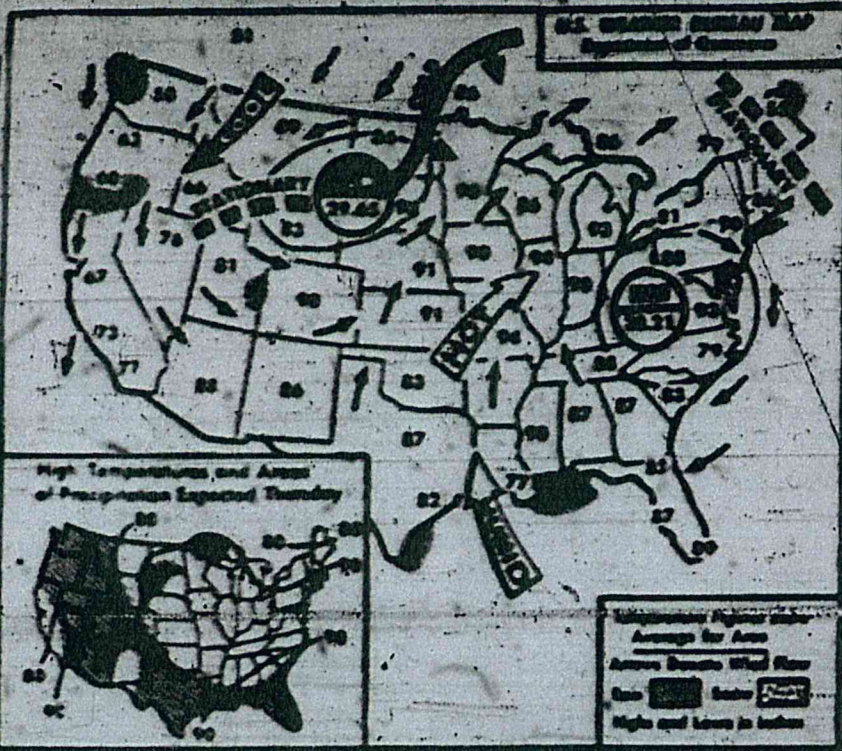

When found shortly after noon, she was wearing dungarees, slippers and a green, short-sleeved shirt. McBay said she was wrapped in a blanket which had been taken from the porch. There's a chance she may have been there all the time, or she may have returned to the house following her walk and crawled onto the ledge.

The police chief said the house had been searched Monday night "from top to bottom."

The ledge had been overlooked, he said, because the kindling wood was in place and members of the family said it had been there for some time.
